

Dear Parents and Carers,

Welcome back for Term 4! I hope you all enjoyed our sunny February half term!

This week, as I am sure you will be aware, there has been a lot of media attention, perhaps even frenzy, around online safety for children. Not so much attention has been given to the fact that this latest alarm is very likely to be a hoax. Nevertheless, there are videos on YouTube and images on google that are inappropriate and scary for children. The best way to combat this both for schools and families is to continue to follow online safety advice.

Particular tips to protect children from inappropriate video content are:

Consider using paid platforms like Netflix Kids. Services like Netflix Kids monitor content in a more hands-on way than services like YouTube, assuring no adult content gets through.

Supervise younger children. YouTube is a video platform geared towards adults, not young children. While many types of content goes against their policies, there is a great deal of permitted adult content on the site, and prohibited content may still be present as well.

Use YouTube Kids. YouTube kids is an app for phones or tablets that filters out adult themed content and is much safer than the standard YouTube platform. However, adult content can still make its way onto YouTube Kids, so younger children should still be supervised if allowed on this app.

Use official YouTube channels and their playlists. Official channels aimed at kids such as the Peppa Pig Official Channel will not contain adult content (and they've not been “hacked”.) Stick to these channels, and use playlists if available (which play a number of videos from that channel one after the other) to ensure kids don't wander off the channel.

Familiarise yourself with children's favourite apps/platforms. This gives a parent a chance to check out the content themselves pre-emptively as well as parental controls that may be available.

Keep communication open. Regardless of what platform children use, make sure your children know to come to their parents if they see something that worries or frightens them. Tell children not to keep worrying content to themselves.

Best wishes

Mrs Kate Law – Head of School
