Mysterious noises

As I wait in the darkness, millions of thoughts race through my mind. Who or what will I see in the darkness? I could feel my heart in my chest like it was about to explode. I could sense the presence of something lurking in the shadows. I ignored it and prayed that it was my imagination.

I couldn't believe that soon I may meet the fear that has been haunting me for what feels like forever. I hid under a heavy blanket so no one could see me. Everything was silent. Suddenly, I heard it - the mysterious noises that I had been hearing all week.

Shadows flooded my garden: something could see me - it was watching me. The noises got louder, like it was out of breath. I was terrified. It was like time stopped as I thought about what to do. Slowly I took off the blanket. My heart stopped as I saw what it was. It was... My dad doing the Joe Wicks P.E lessons! I screamed and ran away.
