The King of the Fishes

Before you plan your story (based on The King of the Fishes), your main character will need to rescue a King or a Queen of a species.

Time to get creative!

Design your character that is going to be rescued...King of the Monkeys? Queen of the Eagles? You decide!

You can draw your design and label its key features; additionally, you can write a short character description to really get the reader to understand the characteristics and appearance.

If you're feeling really creative, use materials around the house to create a model of your character!

Queen of the Snails

King of the Iguanas
